The Light of the World

As if going off to college isn't hard enough, Rayne discovers she has other challenges beyond roommates or first-year workload.

She discovers the fate of the world resting on her small shoulders, not to mention the creepy whispers that taunt her in her sleep each night.

In the haze of her dreams she hears it, 'You're dead. You're dead and I just forgot to tell you.'

The sentence is alarming in itself.

Add to that, the voice whispering to her is her mother's, and you have a real nightmare.

But what happens when the whispers in your sleep are warnings and the ghosts in the water are your friends?

What happens when the guy you fall for freshman year is your family's oldest enemy?

What happens when the only sleep you get is when you lie with the dead, and the only way to save yourself is to murder your parents?

With the help of her new friends and old lovers, Rayne discovers her destiny has very little to do with midterms and more to do with the fate of humanity.
