Is it possible for someone to find love while running from it? Joyce Nickerson was use to seeing herself as second best. For years, she kept herself in a shell, not wanting to repeat the same mistakes that left her childless and alone. After a tragic accident that made her second guess her choices, she struggled with forgiving those in her past, and moved on to what she believed was a new beginning. Just when she thought she was making progress, her past made contact with her... leaving her to decide which way love would go. I'neta Villanucci grew up having to protect herself. Always being one who was cautious about letting others in, she surprised herself by being caught in a situation beyond her control. Praying for the first time in years, she found herself being rescued by love. Her next decision would determine whether love continued to pursue or not. Being faced with life and death changed both women's world... but the decisions they made are what changed their lives.
